

“We’ve done disability awareness training for our staff in the past, but it was boring, and people left feeling they were no better equipped than before the training – can you develop a better program?”

Based on the “Amazing Race” concept, Spinal Life Australia are dedicated to delivering the unique training package known as the Realistic RACE.

Taking training to the next level, getting participants out of the training room, away from slide shows overcrowded with dot points and into REALITY... Into a position where they experience first-hand the accessibility issues faced by the public, their clients, their community.

The Realistic RACE involves all participants experiencing a disability condition for a brief amount of time whilst they complete a series of tasks. The tasks are designed specific for the company the RACE will be run in. These tasks will see that all participants experience the accessibility issues within the very building they work in (if you are a company) or around your whole town (if you are a Local Government).

The Realistic RACE is about challenging your very comfort zone and stepping outside of the box. Individuals with disabilities that face these issues sure are out of their comfort zone feeling – excluded & forgotten.

The RACE is a hands-on training that proves to be useful in raising awareness and changing attitudes.

Sessions are run over three hours with a maximum 30 participants using assistive technology provided by Spinal Life Australia.

Fees are charged at rate of $300 per participant for 3 hours.

For an obligation free discussion about hosting a Realistic RACE or sending some participants in an existing program, please contact Dane Cross by calling 1300 774 625 or emailing dcross@spinal.com.au.
